(57) Abstract :

The present invention is a system designed to provide resources and services to those in need, such as job opportunities, financial assistance, housing, health care, education, mental health support, legal assistance, and access to community resources. The system is tailored to address the challenges faced by the middle class society in India, such as job insecurity, lack of financial stability, inadequate housing, inadequate access to health care, lack of educational opportunities, and discrimination. The system comprises various modules, including job opportunities, financial assistance, housing, health care, education, mental health support, legal assistance, community resources, data storage, and user interface. The system is adapted for use in India and is designed to provide access to resources and services tailored to the needs of the middle class society in India.
